SALES ANALYSIS FOR BRIGHTLIGHT RETAIL

"Bringing Happiness in Every Cup"

PREPARED BY:
BRANDON MLOYI

DATE:
2025/11/02

OVERVIEW

OBJECTIVE :

- Calculate and interpret sales metrics from the dataset.
- Measure profitability and pricing sensitivity.
- Identify promotional performance and trends.

DATASET :

- Daily sales data for one product.
- Includes: Date, Sales, Cost of Sales, Quantity Sold.

DAILY SALES OVERVIEW

KEY INSIGHTS :

- Total daily sales fluctuate between R5K–R25K.
- Average unit price remained around R12–R14, slightly lower during promotions.
- Price dips align with small spikes in sales volume.

WEEKLY OR MONTHLY PERFORMANCE

KEY INSIGHTS :

- Highest revenue weeks: Week 6, Week 10, Week 14..
- Profit margin improved post Week 10 as price stabilized.
- Seasonality visible with regular demand waves

PROFITABILITY TRACKER

KEY INSIGHTS :

- Average gross profit margin: ≈ 40%.
- Noticeable margin dips during promotions.
- Some days show high sales but lower margin — trade-off between volume and profitability.

PROMOTION PERIODS & ELASTICITY

KEY INSIGHTS :

- As prices increase, sales drop sharply - especially after R70, showing high price sensitivity.
- Products priced below R50 perform best during promotions, driving the highest quantities sold.
- Mid-range prices (R30-R60) offer the best balance between price and sales volume - your promotional sweet spot.

PROFIT PER PRODUCT

KEY INSIGHTS :

- Top-performing products contribute most to overall margin.
- Low-profit items could be reviewed for price adjustments.

KEY INSIGHTS SUMMARY :

- Daily prices steady with occasional professional dips.
- Sales are highly sensitive to pice, with mid-range pricing (R30-R60) maximizing volume while avoiding sharp drops, making it the optimal range for promotions.
- Price elasticity shows elastic demand (customers react to price.

RECOMMENDATIONS:

- Optimize promotions: Run smaller, targeted discounts.
- Balance volume vs margin: Monitor profit per unit during discounts.
- Data tracking: Automate thes pivots with SQL pipelins.
- Dashboard suggestion: Use Power BI or looker Studio for ongoing KPI monitoring.

CONCLUSION

- Product demand is price elastic.
- Profitability depends heavily on managing discount depth.
- Sustained revenue growth = consistent pricing + cost efficiency.